STATEMENT

The Federal Rules contemplate that a complaint will consist of a short, plain statement of plaintiff's claim for relief. Such a claim is ordinarily to be presented in short, numbered paragraphs. The complaint in this case does not meet that test. It spans 25 pages and includes no numbered paragraphs of any kind, instead presenting a wealth of allegations concerning what Plaintiff refers to as the "general state of the real estate industry." The court is unable at this point even to determine whether it has jurisdiction over Plaintiff's claims, as he has not identified any federal statute allegedly violated, nor has he provided information sufficient to determine whether the members of Defendant (a partnership) are diverse in citizenship from Plaintiff.
